INTRODUCTION

“Humans had proven to be unusually good at learning to recognize visual pattern”. With regular teaching – learning process, we can hear the concepts but with the 3D learning process, we can visualize the concepts. 3D learning process brings the topic to life with animations that capture the student curiosity and develop deeper interest in to the subject like never before allowing the students to visualize, evaluate and analyze the concept. The third dimension of depth and distance makes things seem much more real than a picture.

Georg Solti, a Hungarian music conductor stated “My entire learning process is slow, because I have no visual memory”. His quote on slow learning shows how important it is to be visually receptive to gain knowledge. Hence, visual learning is not just an option but a promoter of stable and sustainable learning.

Keeping all this in view, KVSRSOCPS, Vijayawada in collaboration with Infoplus Technologies, an U.K. based company has launched a “3D class room” for B.Pharmacy programme for the first time in A.P. on 16-06-2022.

OBJECTIVES OF 3D LEARNING

- Use of 3D gives students higher self-efficacy which in turn also makes the teacher motivated to teach to the best of their ability.
- Students are drawn to focus on the current task preventing them from misbehaving and causing distraction in the lesson.
- By showing the concepts visually in a realistic, life like way students gain a deeper understanding extending their knowledge capability.
- Students are more likely to retain information for the future through 3D learning process.
- Regain student’s attention in lessons by bringing the topic to life through 3D animations, to make the lesson a journey not a lecture.

INTRODUCTION

Communication skills are the abilities you use when giving and receiving different kinds of information. Some examples include communicating new ideas, feelings or even an update on your project. Communication skills involve listening, speaking, observing, and empathizing. It is also helpful to understand the differences in how to communicate through face-to-face interactions, phone conversations and digital communications like email and social media.

Here are some pointers to look out for when looking to improve your ability to effectively communicate with others:

1. Listening

To become a good communicator, it is important to be a good listener. It is important to practice active listening – pay close attention to what others are saying and clarify ambiguities by rephrasing their questions for greater understanding.

2. Conciseness

Convey your message in as few words as possible. Do not use filler words and get straight to the point. Rambling will cause the listener to tune out or be unsure of what you are talking about. Avoid speaking excessively and do not use words that may confuse the audience.

3. Body language

It is important to practice good body language, use eye contact, utilize hand gestures, and watch the tone of the voice when communicating with others. A relaxed body stance with a friendly tone will aid in making you look approachable to others.

Eye contact is important in communication – look the person in the eye to indicate that you are focused on the conversation. But make sure to not stare at the person as it can make him or her uncomfortable.

4. Confidence

Be confident in what you say and in your communication interactions with others. Being confident can be as easy as maintaining eye contact, maintaining a relaxed body stance, and talking with concision. Try not to make statements sound like questions and avoid trying to sound aggressive or demeaning.

5. Open-mindedness

In situations where you disagree with what someone else has to say, whether it be with an employer, a co-worker, or a friend, it is important to sympathize with their point of view rather than simply try to get your message across. Respect the opinion of others and never resort to demeaning those who do not agree with you.

6. Respect

Respecting what others have to say and acknowledging them is an important aspect of communication. Being respectful can be as simple as paying attention to what they have to say, using the person's name, and not being distracted. By respecting others, the other person will feel appreciated, which will lead to a more honest and productive conversation.

7. Using the correct medium

There are several different forms of communication to use – it is important to choose the right one. For example, communicating in person about serious matters (layoffs, salary changes, etc.) is more appropriate than sending an email regarding the matter
